Confidence in Textiles

This is the motto to which the independent test institutes making up the International Oeko-Tex® Association have been committed since 1992. The members of this association test textile materials and products for harmful substances in accordance with "Oeko-Tex® Standard 100", in order to ensure that such materials and products are ecologically safe for humans and that they will pose no health risk whatsoever.

Especially in the globalised world of today's textile industry, the Oeko-Tex® label provides consumers with the reassuring certainty that they are "in touch" with high-quality textile materials and responsibly manufactured products with skin-friendly properties.

Customers of POLI-TAPE know that almost all textile transfer films supplied are based on polyurethane, a raw material which is ecologically safe for humans, and that the products bear the "Oeko-Tex® Standard 100" seal of approval testifying to their high level of quality. This means that these POLI-TAPE products are free of PVC, plasticisers, heavy metals and environmentally harmful substances. Good for people, better for the environment.
